

Reframing everything in a Clinical Context: Is it feasible? Necessary?

Sarah Carotenuto, sarahcarotenuto@arizona.edu

In today's veterinary curriculum, there is a greater push to relate all learning to a clinical context to better engage and prepare students for clinical rotations and life as veterinary practitioners. But is this push towards a clinical context necessary? More importantly, is it feasible to bring basic foundational subjects like anatomy and physiology into clinical relevancy?